SPOOK-TACULAR CLUES

1. Instead of a trick or treat, these ducks will grow you something fresh to eat! Named after a congressman who was so cool, in 1862 he and Abe Lincoln created our Land Grant School. You can find his hall, three stories tall.
2. The duck you seek to solve this leg can be found where the History of All Hallows Eve are held. Meet your Old co'Hort' outside this place, keeping 6 foot space.
3. Pirates are sneaky, you could even say they're crooks. They'll twist your words & toss you to the birds. Book it to the place where the most pages are flipped in books.
4. Before we kick-off, a Band of many reside here; if you're lucky to be near, a Thriller of a tune, you may hear.
5. This isn't a wild duck chase if you go to the place where you can see your own face. A rounded pool now without water, where the services of students are met, and the feeling of serenity is set!
6. In the place of artifacts, old and new, is where you will find your next duck clue! There are no mummies, there is no coffin, but a dinosaur can be found there often.
7. A place to swim laps and become fighting fit for a zombie duck apocalypse this is. Perhaps a duck is here doing their ducky sports business! If you're in the gardens, head west - IM sure your hunt will circle round from 'ok' to 'best.'
8. Wherefore Art though? This place is Lex Luther's lair... get there now to be a winning duck hunt player!
9. Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde's peculiar and spooky case can be taught by the ducks at this place.
10. The stained glass can shine a dreamy cast on a vampire, so go to this Tudor style building where the start of many unions transpire?
11. The game is afoot! Here is the best place to come together, gear up, and fuel up for your duck hunting adventure.
12. The ducky doctors at this location have been very careful to keep Ducktor Frankenstein away while your ducky hunt is underway.
13. Listen for the chimes, for a Fair duck maiden could be signaling that there's a witch at the belfry...be quick, but stealthy!
